

Why Study History.

It is often frustrating to some students to study subjects that they see as having no practical value. And, of course, it is unlikely that a history course alone will land you a job. But it can help. How can it help? What is the value of a history course, and how can it enrich your life? Although many students like history simply because it is interesting, there are a number of solid, "practical" reasons for studying it. It is often said that we need to understand our past to live in the present and build the future. This is true on a number of levels. On the psychological level, identification with the past
